Writing

The famous writer Alexandra K. Trenfor said that "The best teachers are those who show you where to look but don't tell you what to see". This is essence of effective teaching because great teachers help us to find our way, but they allow us to make!

I agree with Alexandra K. Trenfor, In my opinion, teachers can help us to find our personal way only if they can show it. If they will show it, but ~~don't~~ wouldn't tell us what to see, in the future, we will make the biggest ~~win~~ wins by ourselves. By presenting students with thought-provoking questions and diverse perspectives, they encourage them to develop their own positions.

For example, in story "French lessons" by Pasternak, the main character was a poor boy. He didn't have enough money for life, so he started to play in casinos. But when his teacher of French found it, she started to help him with money. She started to talk with him about how playing for money is bad. The boy listened her and dropped his hobby. After this, he took himself the best life that he wanted.

In conclusion, I believe that the most effective teachers are those who help us to find our way and encourage students to develop their own position.

This story ^{is a good} ~~help~~ ~~is reason~~ example to illustrate my reasons and it shows how teachers can help us in our life.
