Writing.

The educational system has become an especiall^{ly} important topic in recent^{ly} years. Many students have complaints^{ed} about the incompetency of school staff^s. Which^{is} is why today I want to talk about teachers and everything they should strive to do. I will use the following quotation by Alexandra K. Trenfor as a base for my talking points. "The best teachers are those who show you where to look, but don't tell you what to see."

I completely agree with that quotation. In my personal experience, it is far easier to learn something by being personally invested in the subject and being able to explore and find information about the subject on your own ^{than}. I think all teachers should be able to provide the essential knowledge, while showing you where you can find the smaller details."

An example of this is my own English teacher. I have always wanted to learn English, and I believe my teacher has done a great job providing me with the most important knowledge, while her help and ^{my} passion for the subject let me to learn the rest.

In conclusion, I think the biggest priority for any teacher should be spark interest for the subject in the students, and providing them with all the right material.
