"The roots of education are bitter, but the fruits is sweet." This is a well-known Aristotle's statement. From my perspective, it means that ~~the base of our education~~ is difficult, inconvenient and "tasteless" to create the base of our education. But after all, it will become sweet, exciting and enjoyable. That is how I understand this ~~the~~ truthful point.

From my personal view, this opinion has the most suitable words for our educational process I have ever heard. At the beginning of something, especially of education, ~~you~~ ^{there} will be always problems and difficulties, many situations when you should ~~go~~ ^{step} through yourself, put ~~your~~ all of your time and abilities in. But keep going, remember that "the Rome was not built ~~with~~ ⁱⁿ one day," and in one day you will see ~~the very~~ impressive results the result will show up. You would not be frustrating, I promise. For me, the main reasons are ability to understand the global problems, genious and have personal development. Overall, the life will be much thrilling and striking with knowledge ^{let}.

I ~~think~~ ^{will} ~~can~~ ^{could} give a wonderful ~~exap~~ example from ~~literature~~ ^{the history} ~~that~~ to prove my opinion. The Katherine the Great was a curious person, she did not miss the one day without books, they were ~~your~~ her "best-friends." She agreed that "education ~~is~~ ^{was} bitter, ~~have~~ much challenges, but she kept going. The ~~educat~~ books were the reading, writing are her significant things what she did. That is why, she inspires me to continue my learning."

In conclusion, I want say, that Aristotle was a hundred per cent right. The fruit of our education will be amazing and enjoyable.
